

California Proposition 65

Proposition 65, otherwise known as the Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act of 1986, requires consumer product warnings for products shipped to California that contain chemicals known to the state of California to include carcinogens or reproductive toxins unless such chemicals are present below established Safe Harbor Levels or are shown to be present in unharmed concentrations.

Starline is taking a risk-based approach concerning Proposition 65. Starline has implemented protocols and procedures to monitor Prop 65 60-day notices. This information is reviewed and compared to Starline's product offering on a categorical basis to identify chemicals of concern and to generate our Restricted Substances List (RSL). When sourcing product we provide the RSL to our suppliers and require assurance that the products conform to it. Additionally, Starline conducts an extensive review of the Bill of Materials to identify if any suspect materials are included in the formulation of the product.

A complete list of Starline product labeling determinations is available in the Compliance section of our website at <https://www.starline.com/more/production-safety-and-compliance>. Product that has been deemed to require labels and has a ship to address of California will be automatically labeled at no charge. Starline will also label products determined to require a warning label, when shipping to a destination outside of California, upon request as specified on the purchase order. Starline will not label products determined to be exempt from the warning labeling requirement.

Starline's ultimate goal is to source products free of, or within Safe Harbor Levels of, all chemicals covered by Prop 65 and therefore not label. Where it is necessary to label, Starline will use the "short form" on-product warning label depicted below:
